

Bridging the Gap:

European commitment for the inclusion of persons with disabilities in the development agenda

Bridging the Gap's launch event

Brussels, December 5th, 2017

“Through Bridging the Gap, the European Union is not only promoting the rights and the potential of people with disabilities, but building a better world for all”,
Neven Mimica, European Commissioner for International Cooperation and Development

Comissioner Neven Mimica accompanied by the institutional representatives during his opening speech

December 5th marked the date of the Launch Event of the European project “Bridging the Gap - Inclusive policies and services for equal rights of persons with disabilities”, within the context of the 2017 European Disability and Development Week. The project was address the common challenges "in finding ways to improve our practices, shift our mind-sets and actions in order to ensure the full rights and participation of all women, men and children with disabilities, in all aspects of daily life".

“It is only by joining forces with a wide, diverse range of partners that true change can happen. We very much look forward to moving together to bridge the gaps for the creation of inclusive and sustainable communities”, Birgit Van Hout, OHCHR Europe inaugurated with a high-level meeting introduced by the EU Commissioner for International Cooperation and Development, Mr. Neven Mimica, who presented Bridging the Gap as a "ground-breaking project" which will

“A society which empowers, promotes and protects Human Rights and leaves no one behind – Commissioner Mimica claimed in his speech – is a stronger, more stable, more successful society for all”.

The Commissioner was accompanied during the opening remarks by Victoria Wulf Barreiro, Development Cooperation Counsellor of the Permanent Representation of Spain to the European Union, Patrick Clarke, Vice-President of the European Disability Forum, Birgit Van Hout, Regional Representative in Europe of the Office of the High Commissioner on Human Rights and Sofie From-Emmesberger, Ambassador of Finland to the EU's Political and Security Committee.

All speakers highlighted Bridging the Gap's role for the promotion of the rights and of the inclusion of persons with disabilities, in line with the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD) and the Sustainable Development Goals.

Bridging the Gap's main context of reference was then introduced by the lawyer and disability rights activist Yetnebersh Nigussie (click here for her video message), who in September 2017 was awarded the prestigious Right Livelihood Award, widely referred to as the 'Alternative Nobel Prize'.

From the human rights perspective and acknowledging the many challenges ahead, Ms. Nigussie introduced the main topics of discussion of the day: Inclusive education, CRPD compliance in the SDGs, and Gender equality.

“Bridging the Gap provides countries with advice in disability budgeting and influence development partners to clearly allocate resources for disability inclusion”, Yetnebersh Nigussie, lawyer and disability rights activist

Bridging the Gap, a twofold project

But what is Bridging the Gap about? What are its components, objectives, approaches and issues? The questions were answered in a dedicated event session lead by Victoria Lee and Federico Martire, Project Managers of respectively Bridging the Gap I and II.

The session guided the audience through the twofold approach of Bridging the Gap: a global component (Bridging the Gap I), led by the UN's Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights and focusing on the development of human rights indicators for the CRPD and tools to facilitate the CRPD-compliant implementation of the SDGs, and a country-level component (Bridging the Gap II), coordinated by the International and Ibero-American Foundation for Administration and Public Policies (FIIAPP) in partnership with the Spanish Agency for Development Cooperation (AECID), the Austrian Development Agency (ADA), the Italian Agency for Development Cooperation (IADC-AICS), the European Disability Forum (EDF) and the International Disability and Development Consortium (IDDC), which aims at the mainstreaming of disability in international cooperation and supports the efforts of five partner countries in planning and implementing more inclusive public policies and services.

Bridging the Gap

European commitment for the inclusion of persons with disabilities in development cooperation

Inclusive education

The event continued with the panel session, opened by a first roundtable on inclusive education moderated by Marion Steff, SDGs Coordinator at European Disability Forum. Claude Cahn, Human Rights Officer with the education from their personal and professional perspective.

As Claude Cahn recalled, “inclusive education is a fundamental right. It means that in order to do the work of CRPD one has to really look at the system as a whole and to think about education in its entirety, and to the way in which diversity of children engage with the education system”.

Franz-Joseph Huainigg, by taking inspiration from his personal story, and Donata Vivanti discussed the strengths and

From left to right: Donata Vivanti, Claude Cahn and Marion Steff

OHCHR Regional Office for Europe, Franz-Joseph Huainigg, Member of the Foreign Policy Committee and Committee on Human Rights of the Austrian Parliament, and Donata Vivanti, Vice-President of the Italian Forum on Disability discussed the topic, pointing out the value of inclusive weaknesses of the school systems in their respective countries, Austria and Italy, highlighting the need to keep working to remove physical and cultural barriers and ensure the equal access of persons with disabilities to education.

“Inclusive society, with equal possibilities for everyone and where no one is left behind, starts realizing inclusive education”, Franz-Joseph Huainigg, Member of the Austrian Parliament

Franz-Joseph Huainigg

Ensuring CRPD compliance in the SDGs through international cooperation

The panel session resumed in the afternoon with Jean-Louis Ville, Director of the People and Peace Directorate at European Commission's DG DEVCO, who introduced the discussion on CRPD-compliant SDGs by talking of the EU commitment to the 2030 Agenda and the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, as reinforced by the European Consensus on Development.

Sabine Rehbichler, International Director Programmes, Advocacy and Strategic Partnerships at Light for the world, cooked her recipe for to the actual participation of persons with disabilities in SDG implementation. Giampiero Griffo, President of the Italian Network for Disability and Development, and Thorkild Olesen, SDG Expert to Dansk Blindesamfunds, added spices to the meal emphasizing the empowerment of people with disabilities and their organisations as mandatory requirement to ensure the success of the SDGs.

Jean-Louis Ville, Director of People and Peace at the European Commission

“Projects like Bridging the Gap should develop new perspectives where persons with disabilities are really protagonists”, Giampiero Griffo, President of the Italian Network for Disability and Development

From left to right: Thorkild Olesen, Sabine Rehbichler and Giampiero Griffo

Gender equality and human rights

From left to right: Shitaye Astawes, Joanna Maycock and Olga Montúfar

The third and last panel discussed gender equality under the moderation of Joanna Maycock, Secretary General of the European Women Lobby. Three activists of gender equality and disability rights, Ola Abu matters, stressing the importance of the inclusion of women with disabilities.

Shitaye Astawes, claimed that “women with disabilities are not addressed by the mainstream women's movement”,

“There is the necessity to have specific programmes to ensure that women with disabilities’ issues are equally addressed”, Ola Abu Alhgaib, Deputy Director of Global Leonard Cheshire Disability and IDDC Board Member

Ola Abu Alhgaib

Alhgaib, Deputy Director of Global Leonard Cheshire Disability and IDDC Board Member, Shitaye Astawes, National Coordinator in Ethiopia from the Austrian Development Agency, and Olga Montúfar, President of the Indigenous Persons with Disabilities, inspired the audience with groundbreaking and innovative views to ensure that women’s voice is heard loud and clear in all development

whilst Olga Montúfar talked about intersectionality and the challenges that indigenous women with disabilities have to face.

Finally, Ola Abu Alhgaib, raised the challenges related to the promotion of the rights of women and girls with disabilities at national level, “where governments are still struggling to understand how to put that into practice”.

Closing remarks

The Director of Social Affairs and Public Administration of FIIAPP, Germán García da Rosa, delivered the final speech.

Mr. García da Rosa summarized the main outcomes of the panels, linking the collected inputs to the role Bridging the Gap can play to contribute to more inclusive and equal societies.

Germán García da Rosa

“We need to shorten the distances. On the one hand, we have the CRPD and the SDGs. On the other, we have the reality of persons with disabilities’ inclusion in low and medium income countries. Bridging the gap between these two sides is a difficult but fascinating challenge”, Germán García Da Rosa, Director of Social Affairs and Public Administration of FIIAPP

Keep following Bridging the Gap online!

@BridgingtheGapEUproject

@BtG_project

/BtG_project

/Bridging the Gap project

This project is funded by the European Union

Bridging the GAP

“This publication has been produced with the assistance of the European Union. The contents of this publication are the sole responsibility of FIIAPP – Cooperación Española” and can in no way be taken to reflect the views of the European Union.”